WHERE DOES ALL THE TIME GO?

Teach us to number our days, that we may gain a heart of wisdom.

Psalms 90:12

It happens in a blink. One moment we are rocking a newborn at midnight, and the next we are watching that same child drive away to start a life of their own. Seasons that felt endless while we lived them suddenly seem to vanish behind us. We blink, and a decade has passed. We catch our reflection and wonder where the years went. If you have ever felt time slipping through your fingers like water, please know that quiet ache is something we all carry. The days move quickly, and sometimes we struggle to hold onto them.

Yet God never intended for us to grasp time desperately or mourn each passing year. Instead, He invites us to number our days with wisdom. This does not mean counting the hours with anxiety. It means treasuring the gift of each ordinary moment. The slow morning coffee, the unhurried conversation, the shared meal around a crowded table—these small things hold eternal weight. When we slow down enough to notice them, we discover that God has been present all along, weaving meaning into moments we almost overlooked.

Our Heavenly Father holds every season of your life in His capable hands.

He knew the days behind you, and He already sees the ones ahead.

Nothing has been wasted, and nothing is too late. The same God who set the sun and moon in their courses cares deeply about how you spend this single day. He does not ask you to do everything. He simply asks you to be present, to love well, and to trust Him with the rest. When you release your grip on time, you free yourself to truly live within it.
